

Call for papers: Special section for the 2007 Chuetsu-oki, Niigata, Japan, Earthquake

We now invite you to the special section of EPS for the earthquake off Chuetsu area in Niigata, Japan, on 16 July 2007. Any papers related to this earthquake are welcome. Since this event is closely related to previous seismic activities in this area, studies on such events in the past are also included. We shall accept only papers of the “letter” style for this special section in order to publish scientific results on this event promptly. Each letter should not exceed 4 pages in print.

Contributors to this special section should submit their papers to the editorial office of EPS, following the instructions for submission as a “letter” to the regular section. For details, please visit <http://www.terrapub.co.jp/journals/EPS> and click on “Information for Contributors”.

Please state in your cover letter that you submit your paper to “Special section for the 2007 Chuetsu-oki Earthquake”. We ask you to attach the list of five potential referees of your manuscript, including two or three researchers outside Japan, if possible. We welcome electronic submissions to eps@terrapub.co.jp.

Upon the acceptance of each manuscript, its corresponding author will receive instructions for the final manuscript from the editorial office. We set the final deadline for this special section on 30 November 2007, but we encourage potential contributors to submit manuscripts as soon as possible in order to be included in press. This special section will preferably be published in the 2008 March issue.

For more information, please send an email message to the Editor-in-Chief of EPS (eps-ed@belinda.sci.hokudai.ac.jp), while questions on manuscript preparation should be addressed to the EPS editorial office.

Note: EPS accepts manuscripts of original research contributions only, and so-called “review papers” will not be accepted.

Kiyoshi Yomogida, Editor-in-Chief
